

What Does the Promise Rings Mean?

To give such a "Promise" is not an ancient ritual, but a completely modern custom. As a rule, the girl is given it by her boyfriend before graduation.

This means that, despite going to various colleges, he intends to continue the relationship and requires it to grow into something more than just a school romance.

A ring of promise is a sign of commitment and faith shared between two partners. When you give someone a Promise Ring, It means that you promise to love that person forever. The Promise Ring is usually given when the couple is getting married early for whatever reason.

While a promise ring is very often viewed as a pre-engagement ring, it is not necessarily given to a romantic partner. Such a ring symbolizes a promise made by you to another person and it can be a friend, or a girlfriend, or even a mother. On the inner surface of the ring, the text of the promise is applied - you can choose one of the popular many Promise Ring options at our Online Store Gemstone Jewelers.

A Bit of History:-

It is tradition dates back to the 16th and 17th centuries. They were known as "Engagement" or "Poetic" rings and symbolized love and future intentions to marry. It was only in the 1970s that the name was changed to "promise rings", while wedding bands were worn only on the day of marriage.

The meaning of the Promise Ring

Best friends have a closer relationship than most couples these days. You're in luck if you've found a friend who supports you no matter what. When you know you have found a friend of your life, give him a promise ring and wear a similar ring to celebrate your undying friendship.

Preliminary interaction

An engagement ring signifies undying love and does not have to indicate marriage. But in case you and your partner intend to end up together, and it's too early to announce your engagement, secretly exchanging promise rings between the two of you can keep the relationship intact and romantic until you decide to get married.

Monogamy

Some couples value the engagement ring more than the engagement ring and prefer to keep it even after the engagement and marriage. You can also give a promise ring after you get married to signify the fulfillment of certain promises together.

Self-Love

If you haven't met your Prince Charming yet, do not worry. Promise rings are all about love and you don't have to wait for someone to give them to you. You can just get one for yourself! Decide to reach your goals in life and fall in love with yourself again when you reach them.

Then What Do Promise Rings Look Like?

What do promise rings look like? Promising rings are usually smaller and less extravagant than engagement rings. They frequently use precious metals such as gold and silver. Promising rings and another pair of rings can be a diamond ring, for example, this tapered baguette ring, or a gemstone ring, for example, this sapphire heart ring.

How to give a Promise Ring?

Make sure you research carefully the meaning of the ring and the message it delivers. If the ring has a diamond, the recipient can view it as an indication of an engagement. Hence, make sure you communicate clearly with them so that there is no room for misunderstanding.

The best time to make a promise ring is usually during moments of celebrations such as birthdays, anniversaries, and Valentine's Day. Pick a date.

If you want your moment to be meaningful and special, you can write a small note about the promise (s) that you intend to keep in the ring box.

How do you plan to present your partner with an engagement ring? Are you going to take them to a fancy dinner or picnic? Or are you planning to surprise them by putting it in your pocket? Whichever method you choose, remember to make them feel special.

What you say when you give the ring of promise also matters. You can express your love and commitment through a song, speech, dance or poem. Keep it discreet and private and remember not to overdo it.

There are various reasons why people give their special person a promise ring.

When to Give a Promise Ring?

The exchange of promise rings before actual engagement is becoming a popular concept. Sometimes we are lucky enough to find the person of our dreams when we are too young, but getting married so early in life may not be possible. In such cases, a promise ring can help you reaffirm your seriousness and commitment to the relationship.

In a long-distance relationship, it's a challenge to keep up with the space between the two of you. A tiny loop around your finger reminds you of your partner and their unwavering love, and it keeps you loyal and devoted.

If you can't afford a real engagement ring right now, a promise ring may mean you want to work hard to make it big in life and look forward to a better tomorrow and a better life for both of you.

How to Choose the Perfect Promise Ring?

The promise ring can be any type of classic platinum ring, diamond ring, or simple personalized rings engraved with your names. Some rings are customizable with symbols of hearts, knots, infinity signs, and arrows.

To make things even more interesting, you can continue to give each other a ring whenever you reach milestones in your relationship - one after finding love, one after getting married, one after having a little baby together, etc.

What about the Material?

Platinum is the best metal that can withstand regular wear and tear. It is the strongest metal and looks the best. It is also very expensive and you can keep it as the best option for your wedding ring. Gold is a good option for a promise ring as it is shiny and durable. If you're on a tight budget, silver is your best bet.

You might be wondering if only men should give promise rings. Maybe vice versa too? Can you gift your boyfriend an engagement ring? Remember to choose a metal that is strong and can withstand constant use. You can go for tungsten, titanium, or pure steel.
